

David Bishop-White

Nothing is easy when it comes to stating my view regards future train alterations on, on your web page. I viewed your 40 question consultation questionnaire with utter dismay. In my mid seventies, I just want to state how difficult it will be for myself and 100's of other disabled passengers if we have to change trains at Edinburgh whilst travelling to Northern Scottish stations from the South. I trust common sense will prevail and the time table will remain as or close to the present.