Dear Sir or Madam

As an elderly person recently suffering from ill-health I am very concerned to hear of possible plans to terminate rail journeys from London at Edinburgh Waverley, necessitating a change to another train for onward travel to Leuchars and all other destinations in the north of Scotland. In that case I would no longer be able to manage the trip on my own, and the consequent increase of journey time would be another factor detrimental to my ability to travel.

I also deplore the potential loss of the sleeper service, which is at present invaluable to both holidaymakers and business people in saving time and trouble. If these combined proposals are put into effect there is bound to be an undesirable haemorrhage of passengers from rail to air and road travel, and further damage to the environment in the form of carbon emissions.

Yours faithfully

Mrs R. K. Fewster
