Dear Scotrail,

Regarding the public consultation you are currently conducting. I would like to test as someone who frequently uses the whifflet line to travel to and from Baillieston rail station that the service is not to the same level as other routes (for example the airdrie line through easterhouse station). The whifflet service does not run on a sunday and there is no parking facilities at the Baillieston station. There have been major housing construction efforts carried out around the Baillieston station. Scotrail should investigate the role of the additional population in the area and consider introducing park & ride facilities at the station.
