

Robert Wilson

At sometime in the future could you please get round to making some improvements at Prestwick international railway station. I travel from the station most days.

when I am waiting for the train many overseas visitors come up to me and complain about the station when they find out I am scottish and local. to many the station is there first view of Scotland and it it does not show us in a good light.

When it rains there is water all over the place,it seems the roof is leaking everywhere you look,there is no waiting room no heating and just one mental bench . In the wind you think the roof is going to come down on top of you.

It does not matter what country they come from, they tell me a station like Prestwick would not be allowed to stay open untill it had a lot of work had been done to it.