

Scottish Railway Stations

Station facilities

There are 350 stations in Scotland, 346 of which are managed by ScotRail. Details can be found here:

<http://www.scotrail.co.uk/travelinfo/station-info.html>

This provides considerable detail for each station including opening hours, staffing, information systems, available services, station facilities, accessibility and general transport links.

Details of all stations in Great Britain can be found here:

http://www.nationalrail.co.uk/stations_destinations/

Location of stations

Route maps for the ScotRail network can be found on the ScotRail website:

<http://www.scotrail.co.uk/timetables-routes>

Station usage

Details of the usage of the stations is compiled by the Office of Rail Regulation and can be found here:

<http://www.rail-reg.gov.uk/server/show/nav.1529>

Station quality

Station quality of ScotRail operated stations is monitored as part of the Service Quality Incentive Regime (SQUIRE). Performance results are published quarterly on the Transport Scotland website and can be shown by station, by train, or by line of route.

Stations within one mile of another station

There are some areas where there are rail stations that are located in close proximity. In the Glasgow commuter area there are 11 stations located less than one mile from another rail station offering similar services and there are three other stations in other parts of Scotland. The distances are estimated based on the actual distance passengers would be displaced if walking to the nearest alternative station.
